45 Foot Craft Towed In After Drifting a Night in Heavy Weather.

FEAR FOR THE OTHERS

12 Foot Rowboat in Which
Duck Shooters Went Out
Found Bottom Up.

WORE BIG RUBBER BOOTS

One of the Men Said to Have
Had a Non-Sinkable Suit.

The forty-five foot fishing boat Elsie K. was towed into Canarsie late yesterday afternoon by the open launch Matilda after she had drifted all Sunday night near the Ambrose Channel Lightship, with seven members of the Fairview Fishing Club of Ridgewood on board besides the three members of her own crew. No trace has been found, however, of the three brothers-in-law who left the dock at Bayside Place, Hammels, Queens, to go gunning for ducks in an open rowboat twelve feet long with a "kicker" for auxiliary power. Their boat was found Sunday afternoon upside down in Jamaica Bay, and it is believed that the three men have been drowned. They are August Hill, Jr., of 711 Bushwick avenue; Pearlson Creighton of 175 Sheridan avenue, both of Brooklyn, and Walter Drows of Springfield, Queens.

As soon as the passengers and the crew of the Elsie K. had been landed they declared, particularly William Hessemer of 114 Alnash street, Brooklyn, that several liners and a Government boat had passed them and had paid no attention to their signals of distress, although they flew their flag at half mast, kept their fog horn going constantly and waved torches and hallooed throughout the night.

The crews of the Ambrose Lightship and the Scotland Lightship, toward which they drifted eventually, said Hessemer, "paid no attention to us either. They must have been able to see us. They could have wirelessed our position to New York and someone could have come for us sooner."

The Elsie K. which is owned by Adam Hessemer and commanded by Capt. John Bevis, left Stahl's Diamond Pier at Canarsie about 7 o'clock Sunday morning, carrying the seven members of the Fairview club. They began fishing in the Ambrose Channel near the Lightship, and had such good luck that they soon filled their boat with cod, whiting, ling and hake. Toward midnight several other fishing boats signalled that they were going in, but the Elsie K. remained for an hour or so after them.

Engine Hopelessly Stalled.
But when Capt. Bevis finally decided to take his boat back to Canarsie, he found that the engine, a two cylinder 25 horsepower machine, would not work, an exhaust valve having broken on one of the cylinders. The crew and the fishermen worked on the motor for some time, and when they realized that it could not be made to run they began signalling for help. They got out their flag and hoisted it at half mast, instead of flying it upside down.

William Hessemer said that an Eagle boat, apparently watching for whiskey runners, was lying at sea at Canarsie at this time, but so close that he could see the fishing poles that the men on her deck were using. This craft, Hessemer said, paid no attention to the half-masted flag, and also paid no attention when the Elsie K. began blowing her foghorn. When dusk fell, Hessemer and his brother rigged up a torch of cotton waste and waved it to and fro, but the Government boat paid no attention to that either.

Hessemer said that shortly after dusk a large liner came along and passed them without heeding their signals. The Government boat fell in behind the liner and proceeded with her toward New York. The Elsie K. continued to drift in the direction of the Lightship, and all through the night her crew and the fishermen kept up blowing of the foghorn and the waving of the torch, but with no response. The men on the boat were not comfortable, as they got into the Elsie's cabin and made coffee and had plenty of food. The ocean was rough, but not sufficiently so to bother them.

Polite, but Wouldn't Help.
Early yesterday morning the crew of the Elsie K. hoisted a sail to the boat's ancient bowsprit and masts. The boat was beginning to make headway back to New York when the Matilda, one of several boats which had put out to look for her, came along. Hessemer said that after they had hoisted their sail a large liner passed. The Elsie's men waved and shouted, and their greetings were answered by uniformed men on the liner, but the big boat did not stop.

The Matilda brought the Elsie K. to her dock. None of the men aboard her were any the worse for their experience. Henry Selbert, who found the upturned boat which Hill, Creighton and Drows had taken out of Hammels and towed it to Meadowmere Park, said that on Sunday morning there were a heavy rain and a strong wind in Jamaica Bay. He believes that the boat may have filled with water and swamped, throwing the three men into the water. All of them wore heavy rubber boots, which probably impeded their swimming. The police have been informed that on previous hunting trips Hill wore a "non-sinkable suit" and if he had this on this time it may have kept him afloat for some time. It is not believed, however, that he could have kept alive until now.

Hill is the son of William Hill, a piano manufacturer of 1845 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, and is in the music business with Creighton. Hill is 25 years old, Creighton is 27 and Drows is 29. Drows has three children.

WM. C. CAMP'S THIRD WIFE WINS A DIVORCE

Movie Actress Named in Suit Against Chicagoan.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—For the third time in his stormy matrimonial career William C. Camp, well known in Chicago's financial and society circles, has been successfully sued for divorce.

The last Mrs. Camp to obtain a decree, as indicated by Judge Joseph B. Sabath to-day, was formerly Mrs. William C. Thorne, whose husband was vice-president of Montgomery Ward & Co. and who left her $2,500,000 at the time of his death.

Mrs. Camp sued with evidence said to have been procured in a midnight raid on "Billy's" bungalow in California early in October. Mrs. Mabel Walker, a movie actress, was named as a co-respondent. The principal exhibit in the divorce hearing to-day, which was uncontested, was a flashlight photograph obtained by a photographer who set his camera outside one of the bungalow windows.

STEWART ACTRESS CHARGES PLUCKING

Mrs. Honeyman Alleges That Valuable Stocks Have Been Improperly Used.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Nov. 14.—An account by Martin Taylor of St. James, L. I., and Leander H. La Chance of Chicago, administrators of the $7,000,000 estate of John K. Stewart, is sought by Mrs. Robert B. Honeyman, Jr., of Chicago. Mr. Stewart's daughter, in papers filed in the Surrogate's Court here to-day, in her answer to a summons to show cause why Taylor and La Chance should not be appointed administrators of the estate of her sister, Miss Jean Stewart, Mrs. Honeyman charges that the two have falsified court records, improperly disposed of valuable stocks and bonds and generally mismanaged the affairs of her father's estate.

Mr. Stewart, who was president of the Stewart Warner Speedometer Corporation, died at Centerport, L. I., June 1, 1915, leaving his property unconditionally to Mrs. Stewart and their two children, Marian, the present complainant, and her sister Jean. Mrs. Stewart died less than a year later and Taylor and LaChance were also named as administrators of her property. Jean Stewart, who was 10 years old, died in Chicago October 10 last, leaving her estate of $2,233,536 to her sister, Mrs. Honeyman. Taylor and LaChance now ask to be named as administrators of this property.

Papers filed here supplementing Mrs. Honeyman's accusations show that big sums already have been spent in settling the affairs of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart. For the support of one little girl entire households were maintained on lavish scales, it is alleged, and thousands of dollars were expended for groceries and other provisions. Mrs. Honeyman objects to the final accounting filed by Taylor and LaChance, which fixes the legal accounting cost at $325,000 and the annual expenses of herself and her sister Jean at over $50,000 a year.

Mrs. Honeyman alleges upon information and belief that 750 shares in the Stewart Manufacturing Company were included in her father's assets. After his death she alleges that Taylor and LaChance made efforts to induce her to assist him in acquiring the stock and an executive position in the company. By virtue of his position as administrator and guardian she says he had himself made president to the detriment of her interests. He also, Mrs. Honeyman alleges, obtained control of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation.

Various Suffolk county residents, the papers filed here maintain, had lucrative appointments as temporary administrators, special guardians and appraisers. She says that for several years the estate has been "liberally discussed" in political circles in the county. False records are alleged to have been made in the Cook County Probate Court at Chicago April 1, 1921.

Robert B. Honeyman, Sr., of 36 Montgomery place, Brooklyn, Mrs. Honeyman's father-in-law, is her attorney. The administrators are represented by McKinstry, Taylor, Patterson & Ellis, of 60 Wall street, Manhattan. Mr. Taylor is one of the administrators, and it is charged that the firm's office rent has been paid out of the estate. In addition to money for the support of the two daughters, LaChance is said to have taken $5,000 yearly from the estate for "incidental expenses."

53 OF TILE COMBINE ADMIT CONSPIRACY

Plead Guilty to Restraint of Competition — Five Cases Are Dropped.

JAIL SENTENCES URGED

Judge Van Fleet Indicates Desire to Speed Up All Trials.

Fifty-three of the sixty-four individuals and corporations who were indicted on August 31 by a United States Grand Jury in connection with limiting of competition and restraint of trade in the tile and mantle trades pleaded guilty to the fourth count of the indictments yesterday before Judge William C. Van Fleet in the United States District Court, withdrawing former pleas of not guilty.

The count charged that the defendants "hindered, impeded and unreasonably restrained and prevented any and all competition between and among themselves in the sale, shipment and delivery of tiles from other States to, into and through this jurisdiction." The practices indulged in by persons and corporations, known as the "tile and mantle combine" consisted, according to the indictments, of "stop notices," "protection cards" and "keep off notices."

Through these notices other members of the combine were warned not to refuse to handle work for any person or concern which had been bid for or undertaken by another member of the combine.

Five cases were nolle prossed on the motion of William Hayward, United States Attorney. They were Mart & Lawton, Inc., the United Tile and Marble Company, Charles C. Alexander, Charles J. L. Mott Iron Works, and Samuels & Tabolsky. The concerns and individuals who pleaded guilty are:

Alexander & Reid Company, Charles K. Barnum & Son, Inc.; Doty & Orr Co.; V. Foscate Company, Inc.; Globe Tile Company, Adolph Grant & Co., William D. Grant, Inc., Howden Tile and Marble Company, Inc., Edwin A. Jackson & Bro., Inc.

William H. Jackson Company, Jackson's Mantel and Grate Works, Inc.; D. H. McLarry Tile Company, Inc.; Henry Miles & Son, J. L. Mott Iron Works, John H. Parry Company, Herman Petri, Inc.; Rudolph Schroeder, Inc.; Morris G. Williams & Co., J. P. Zuria Tile Company, Charles C. Alexander, Charles K. Barnum, William G. Orr, Lewis Vincent Foscate, William A. Shookoff, William J. Adelson, William D. Grant, William J. Howden, William Walter Jackson, Frederick R. Lawrence, Arthur Shilstone.

Also Daniel H. McLaury, Arthur T. Mart, George Miles, Charles E. Ensing, John H. Parry, Herman Petri, Ernest H. Strothoff, Morris G. Williams, Edgar P. Harrison, Israel Lieberman, Frank H. Nobbe, William Erath, I. Frank Pelleman, Vincent De Lazzaro, Solomon Tobias, Clifford S. Barnum, Charles H. Brown, Albert Schalle, Joseph M. Wells, William Admhead, Frederick Crane, Mario Ferraris, John Gatty.

Col. Hayward said that he would urge jail sentences for those who had pleaded guilty as well as those who may be convicted upon trial. He said that the maximum sentence may be $1,000 fine and a year in prison.

The trial of the Atlantic Terra Cotta Company was set for November 21 by Judge Van Fleet, who denied a motion for a postponement until next year. Former Governor Charles S. Whitman's plea for postponement for the Terra Cotta Company was also denied. Judge Van Fleet said he intended to speed up the trials of all defendants in connection with building or materials combinations.

Coincidentally with the disposition and pleadings of the tile combine, the announcement was made by Samuel Lockwood committee would be resumed at the City Hall next Tuesday. It was held in court yesterday that two of the attorneys, Henry L. Stinson and Kenneth M. Spence, who had been instrumental in aiding Mr. Undermyer in his investigation of the Building Trades Council and in the conviction of John T. Hettrick, appeared for the defendants in the tile combine cases.

Col. Hayward announced yesterday that he would push to early trial the cases against those indicted in connection with building or material combines and that he will have as assistants David Podell, Susan Brandeis, Leland B. Durr, Raymond L. Winsor, former assistant to Samuel Undermyer; Benjamin S. Kirsch and Nathan Probst, Jr.

The selection of a jury to try thirty-four marble trade employers for conspiracy to violate the Donnelly anti-trust law was begun yesterday before Justice John V. McAvoy in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court.

The defendants were indicted as a result of the Lockwood housing committee investigation on March 5 last. It is alleged in the indictment that they were members of an association, with offices at 155 Madison avenue, organized for the purpose of fixing prices, destroying competition and restraining trade.

CHURCH SAFES LOOTED.
Five Men Rob Chicago Edifice of $2,500.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Five men stepped into All Saints Church early to-day with the queerest assortment of paraphernalia that had ever entered the church. Instead of a hymnal or a Bible they carried nitroglycerine and an electric drill. When they left the church forty minutes later they had blown the safe and obtained nearly $2,500.

Leo Gajdoski, the night watchman, was bound and gagged before the safe was blown.

VALIDITY OF RECALL ELECTION ATTACKED

Non-Partisan Group Seeks Funds for Court Action.

FARGO, N. D., Nov. 14.—Validity of the recall election in North Dakota October 28 will be attacked in court by a group of taxpayers affiliated with the Non-Partisan League. It was indicated to-day, when appeals for funds to finance the contest action were sent out from Bismarck. These appeals were made over the signature of George T. Laird.

Meanwhile in the Cass County Court House here a group of stenographers started copying the list of voters in the 1920 gubernatorial contest. It has been contended by Non-Partisan League officers that only persons who voted for Governor in the 1920 election were eligible to sign the recall petition.

The election, according to unofficial returns, resulted in the recall of Gov. Frazier and two other State officials elected with Non-Partisan League endorsement and the selection to succeed them of three candidates endorsed by the independent faction.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Proprietary right to "Mutt and Jeff" as characters is possessed by Harry C. "Bud" Fisher and decisions to that effect by the New York State courts are final, the Supreme Court to-day refusing to consider an appeal presented by the Star Company, publisher of the Hearst newspapers.

The comics awarded to Fisher the exclusive right to reproduce the two characters, ordered he be protected from unfair competition of others reproducing them and rejected the contentions of the Star Company that Fisher could only copyright particular postures and words descriptive of their exploits in incidents drawn by him and that the two characters were public property.

DAN HANNA'S SONS GET HIS MILLIONS

Daughters and Wives Were

Funds, He Explained.

INK BLOTS MAR WILL Serve to Erase Certain Dispositions of Part of $10-
000,000 Estate.

The will of Dan R. Hanna of Cleveland, who died November 3 at his country estate in Yorktown, in Westchester county, was filed for probate in White Plains yesterday before Surrogate George A. Slater. It disposes of an estate unofficially estimated at about $10,000,000, the greater part of which is left in equal shares to his sons, Daniel R. Hanna, Jr., of Cleveland; Mark A. Hanna of Watertown, N. Y., and Carl H. Hanna of Watertown. He left nothing to any of his divorced wives, on whom he made cash settlements when they obtained their divorces, and nothing to his daughters. The following paragraph in the will explains why the daughters do not inherit any of the estate:

"Having heretofore made provision for my daughter, Elizabeth Hanna, by a trust created for her benefit, and having also made provision for my daughters, Natalie Stuart Hanna, Charlotte Augusta Hanna, Ruth Hanna and Mary Elizabeth Hanna, by a trust agreement executed by me and my former wife, Mary Stuart Hanna, and by the Guardian Savings and Trust Company of Cleveland, I intentionally omit any further provision for my said daughters or any of them in this my last will."

An odd feature of the will are big blotts of ink which Mr. Hanna seems to have daubed over paragraphs which he had added to the document by writing on the margins of pages 2 and 3. To make certain he had thus cancelled these paragraphs Mr. Hanna wrote above the blotts:

In regard to paragraph 3 these words: "Oct. 14, 1921. This provision cancelled." This paragraph referred to giving his country estate, all his wardrobe, jewelry, furniture, books, pictures, silverware, horses, carriages and automobiles to his son, Daniel R. Hanna, Jr. Another blot out a paragraph on the margin of page 2, which can be deciphered like this, through the blot: "And I give, devise and bequeath in equal shares to my wife, should I have one, and my three sons, as recited in paragraph 3, which is being my intention to marry June Avis Evans." The words that immediately follow are blotted out, and then this can be read: "Should I die before such marriage takes place, I instruct my executors to provide a trust"—and then there are heavy blotts.

The will also leaves $25,000 each to Herbert W. Foster of Watertown and Louise Shipman of Manhattan, Mr. Hanna's secretaries. It directs the executors to pay out of the residue all taxes so the legatees shall receive their legacies without diminution. The witnesses to the will were Walter T. Hawkins, Manton R. Sedgwick and Maurice J. Roche. The executors are Herbert W. Foster and Mr. Hanna's three sons.
